Kindergarten in nature

For the fourth year, we are organizing an unforgettable stay in nature at EduArt, from June 23 to 27, 2025 in the picturesque village of Čestice in South Bohemia - in a facility specially designed to preschool children. This event offers a unique opportunity to enrich your children's childhood with new experiences, skills and friendships.

Kindergarten in nature is not only an adventure, but also a valuable experience that brings children a number of benefits:

- A healthy stay in the fresh air: Children will spend most of their time outdoors, where they will actively explore nature and enjoy movement. Movement in a natural environment improves coordination and overall physical fitness.
- Support for independence: They will learn to solve small challenges, such as taking care of their belongings, and will learn the basics of independence outside the home.
- Development of social skills: Games and activities that promote cooperation will strengthen relationships between children and teach them to work in a team.
- Discovery and Creativity: Activities focused on nature exploration and creation develop children's curiosity and imagination.
- Support for mental and physical health: Spending time in nature helps to calm the mind, reduces stress and increases resilience. Time in the fresh air strengthens the body's natural defenses.
- Comfort and care: Secured accommodation, 5 meals a day, 24-hour care from teachers, a night teacher and a nurse, transport.

What awaits your children?

- All-day thematic programs full of fun games and creativity.
- Regular walks and exploring the beauties of the surrounding nature.
- Team activities that promote friendship and cooperation.
- Shared moments with evening games and fairy tales.

Edík's Around-the-World Adventure

Job shadowing in Spain

In mid-January, teacher Patricia from the Hlubětín kindergarten completed another in a series of work trips - the so-called shadowing - in a visiting kindergarten in Benalmadena, Spain.
The main purpose of this professional internship was to get acquainted with the Spanish education system, observe direct work with children, analyze teaching methods and research the educational aids used.
Staying in a foreign country allows for a deeper understanding of the local culture, which has a direct benefit for working with foreign children in our kindergartens, especially during adaptation. The knowledge and experience gained will be shared with the entire teaching team, and we believe that it will enrich the approach to children and support the further development of educational activities.

Health topic on Libuš

The winter months are often challenging for our immune system. That is why we include the topic of Health in our educational program every year, in which we remind children in a playful way the importance of prevention and hygiene. Together we learn to get to know our bodies, distinguish between healthy and unhealthy habits, and spend time moving in the fresh air. In Prague 4, this topic was supplemented last month with a cheerful theater performance “How to Grow Up to Bacilli”.

Angels in fur in a kindergarten in Hloubětín

The kindergarten in Hloubětín is regularly visited by the so-called "Angels in Fur." This organization brings a unique educational program focused on direct interaction of children with live animals and on deepening their knowledge of nature. Each meeting is designed to correspond to the season and natural changes in nature. For example, children learn about the wintering of animals and their adaptation to the conditions of individual months. The main advantage of the program is the possibility of direct interaction with the animals. Children can pet the animals, feed them, or take a closer look at them. An entertaining accompanying program is always prepared with teaching aids, thematic games or activities. The program promises to develop children's knowledge in the form of experiential learning and also support their emotional relationship to nature and living creatures. We thank this organization for its cooperation and look forward to our next meeting.

Multicultural education in EduArt

The EduArt Kindergarten welcomes children regardless of their nationality, language, religion, or cultural background. Thanks to the diverse composition of our children's group and our rich experience with various groups, we work on creating a friendly environment where everyone feels welcome and respected.
This openness and individualized approach are the key values of our school.
Multicultural education is one of the main trends in contemporary education, reflecting the growing cultural diversity of society. Kindergarten, as the first level of education, plays an indispensable role in this process. Through education focused on cultural diversity, children can learn to understand and respect differences from an early age, contributing to their empathy, tolerance, and ability to cooperate.

Importance and Objectives

Multicultural education includes thoughtful educational activities that guide children to recognize and respect different cultures. Its main objectives are:

- Developing sensitivity to differences and fostering empathy.
- Breaking down stereotypes and prejudices.
- Promoting communication and cooperation among children from different backgrounds.
- Preparing children for life in a connected and diverse society.

Multicultural Approach

At EduArt, we reflect the importance of a multicultural approach in our educational program and strive to create a safe and stimulating environment for all children without distinction.
How we support multicultural education at EduArt:

- A bilingual approach helps children from diverse backgrounds integrate into the group. Children acquire new skills naturally through play and situational learning.
- We include projects that connect education with exploring fascinating personalities, cultures, and nature.
- We participate in programs that connect children with seniors, fostering intergenerational dialogue and the transfer of experiences and traditions.

Methods

- Experience-based learning: Children explore different cultures through experiential activities.
- Working with books and music: We introduce children to stories, songs, and dances from around the world.
- Games and dramatization: Children can try out what it's like to live in other cultural settings.

Why is multicultural education important?

Multicultural education prepares children for life in a connected world. By teaching respect and tolerance from an early age, children are more likely to form healthy, unbiased relationships. Its main benefits include:

- Strengthening the ability to collaborate with others.
- Developing cultural awareness.
- Encouraging mutual learning among children.
- Building each child's identity and self-confidence.

Multicultural education is an investment in the future, contributing to better coexistence and understanding among people.
At EduArt, we strive to successfully integrate these values into the daily lives of our children.
